The Bible is a collection of books from Old Testament times which come into being over a span of more than 1000 years, as well as books from the New Testament period, which was composed over a span of about 70 years.
Jesus Christ is the centre of Scriptures. According to Christian understanding, the principal aim of the Old Testament is to prepare the incarnation and activity of the Son of God. Important, therefore, are the statements of the Old Testament that are in agreement with the gospel, as is witnessed by the New Testament.
